

About the Lecture Series

The Mestenhauser Lecture Series provides an academic forum in which scholars from around the world present innovative and thought-provoking scholarship on the internationalization of higher education. The lecture is organized by the Global Programs and Strategy Alliance as part of the Mestenhauser Legacy Initiative. Lectures are recorded and the papers are published by the GPS Alliance at: global.umn.edu/icc/lecture/

The lecture series is named in honor of Dr. Josef A. Mestenhauser, who was Distinguished International Emeritus Professor in the Department of Organizational Leadership, Policy, and Development and the former director of international education at the University of Minnesota. His more than fifty-year career included serving as teacher, researcher, administrator, counselor, and consultant. He published widely on international education, educational exchanges, international studies, cross-cultural relations, leadership development, educational reform, and professionalism. His work left an indelible impact on the field of international education and on the lives of many students and colleagues around the world.

The Mestenhauser Legacy Fund was created in partnership with Josef Mestenhauser to support his mission and vision for international education. For more information about the Mestenhauser Legacy Fund, go to: global.umn.edu/icc/legacy/

Hanneke Teekens brings more than forty years of experience in education as a teacher, researcher, consultant, and manager. She retired in 2013 from the Board of Directors of NUFFIC, the Netherlands Organization for International Cooperation in Higher Education. At NUFFIC, Hanneke was responsible for a wide range of activities, including the Netherlands Education Support Offices in ten countries. She was director of the Socrates National Agency and Erasmus Mundus. Before joining NUFFIC, Hanneke worked at Twente University, the Hogeschool van Amsterdam, and the Graduate School of Teaching and Learning of the University of Amsterdam. She is the founder of Climes, her own consultancy company for coaching and advising in international education.

One focus of her research regards ways to support teaching staff in ensuring and demonstrating international, intercultural, and global learning outcomes. Hanneke has worked in many countries around the world on projects and training, and has published on various aspects of international education, in particular Internationalization at Home.

Hanneke is a frequent speaker at international seminars and conferences and is currently a senior fellow of NAFSA: Association of International Educators. She is Chair of the Board of AFS Netherlands, the organization that brought her to the U.S. as an exchange student in 1966. She studied at Leyden University and holds graduate degrees in History and Education.
